The Last Sad Rites.

Funeral Services Over the Remains of Jefferson Davis.

VERY IMPOSING CEREMONIES.

It is Estimated That One Hundred Thousand People Witnessed the Spectacle. The Day Observed in Many Cities Throughout the South.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—The vast concourse of people assembled in front of the city hall, on Lafayette square, during the funeral services held over the remains of Jefferson Davis bore testimony to the fact that the demise of the historical head and representative of the Confederacy and war of the rebellion was not without national significance.

It would be difficult to form any just estimate of the number of people present, but it is safe to say that over 100,000 persons witnessed the imposing ceremonies. Bishop Gallagher officiated, being assisted by Bishop Thompson, of Mississippi, and Rev. Ebenezer Thompson, of Biloxi, Mr. Davis' pastor, Dr. Markham, of the Presbyterian church; Father Hubert, of the Catholic church, and Drs. Bakewell and Martin, of the Episcopal church. A surprised choir sang Sullivan's anthem, "Though I Walk Through the Valley of the Shadow of Death."

The body was conveyed to the cemetery, a distance of over three miles from the city hall, on a caisson, an immense procession and multitude of people following the remains to the place of temporary interment.

Representatives of the Army of Northern Virginia and the Army of Tennessee veterans marched side by side just behind the caisson. Emblems of mourning were everywhere visible throughout the city, and many vessels lying in the harbor had their flags flying at half mast.

Among the chief mourners were Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Hayes, a daughter of the dead chieftain, and Gen. Joseph R. Davis, a nephew. The remains will not be removed from the tomb of the Army of Northern Virginia for some time to come, but it is believed that the permanent burial place likely to be chosen by Mrs. Davis will be in Metairie cemetery, in this city, or in Jackson, Miss.

The day was fine, and could not have been more propitious for the event celebrated.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 12.—There never has been such a demonstration in Charleston as there was yesterday since the raising of the liberty pole in December, 1869, in celebration of the secession of the state. Business was entirely suspended from 12 m. to 4 p. m., and the entire white population turned out at the Grand opera house where the memorial services were held. Thousands of men, women and children were turned away, being unable to gain admittance. Those repaired to Marion square, where two artillery companies were engaged in firing minute guns.

All business houses and public buildings except the postoffice and custom house were draped in mourning, and Confederate, National and state flags were displayed at half-mast on four-fifths of the buildings in this city. A notable feature of the decorations at the Grand opera house, was the display of Confederate battle flags, many of which had not seen the light for nearly thirty years. A prominent feature of the stage decorations was the state colors of Connecticut, which were presented to a military company by the First regiment of the Connecticut National guards during their visit to this city some ten years ago.

In Baltimore, Md.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—There was a meeting held at the First Regiment armory last night in memory of Jefferson Davis, under the auspices of the Maryland Society of the Confederate Army and Navy. It was one of the largest gatherings held in Baltimore in recent years. The president of the meeting was Mayor Robert C. Davidson. A large portrait of Mr. Davis was conspicuously displayed, as were also the National and state flags. The opening prayer was made by Rev. Randolph H. McKim, of Washington. Addresses, eulogistic of Mr. Davis' life and character, were made by Gen. Bradley T. Johnson, Col. Charles Marshall, Hon. S. Teackle Wallis, and Col. D. G. McIntosh.

Mention of the name of Horace Greeley, who offered assistance to Mr. Davis during the latter's imprisonment after the war, was lustily cheered. Col. Marshall compared Jefferson Davis to George Washington: the only difference between them, he said, being that one rebel, endeared to every American heart, was successful; the cause of the other failed.

Many complimentary things were said by the speakers of the north and northern people.

At Norfolk, Virginia.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 12.—The striking display of respect and devotion to the south as manifested in this section yesterday on the occasion of the memorial meetings in honor of the memory of ex-President Davis, was not only touching and beautiful, but was never surpassed by any occasion of mourning for the nation's distinguished dead. The streets in every direction were hung with crepe and business was suspended. The flags on public buildings and on the shipping in the harbor were half-masted. Towards noon the bells of this city and of Portsmouth were tolled.

The Confederate camps and military companies and Mexican veterans assembled at their respective armories and marched to the Academy of Music, where the Norfolk meeting was held. Thousands of people assembled. The public schools gave a holiday, and the children of the city wore badges and were given seats in the academy. The meeting in Portsmouth was held in the monumental church and largely attended. Brief addresses were made by different speakers. Such a large meeting of sorrow has never been held before in the history of the city.

At Petersburg, Virginia.

PETERSBURG, Va., Dec. 12.—Elaborate memorial services in honor of the late Jefferson Davis, were held here at the Academy of Music yesterday. Fully 2,000 persons were present. Addresses were delivered by Capt. W. Gordon McCabe, and Reverends J. W. Rosebro, R. A. Goodwin, R. R. Acree, and J. F. Twitty. Resolutions of respect passed by A. P. Hill camp, Confederate veterans, were read. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. M. Pilcher, chaplain of the camp and the burial services of the Episcopal church was read by Rev. Drs. Gibson and Haines. Music was furnished by the chorus of the Petersburg Musical association. The A. P. Hill camp, the military companies of the city, the Prince George cavalry, and the mayor and city council were present. Business was entirely suspended, bells were tolled, and minute guns fired, and many places of business were elaborately draped in mourning.

Sermons Preached in Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 12.—In St. Paul's Episcopal church, where Davis worshipped, the old pastor, Dr. Minnegerode, preached a masterly sermon, giving details not heretofore known in regard to Mr. Davis. Dr. Minnegerode was Davis' chaplain. The church was packed. Dr. Hoge delivered an oration in the Presbyterian church. An immense audience was present.

The Baptist joint meeting was addressed by Drs. Lamm, Hatcher and Goodwyn. The church was crowded.

There was a large attendance at the Hebrew synagogue.

At the Methodist mass meeting several fine addresses were delivered.

In the legislature speeches were made by several members. Howitzers were fired; minute guns were fired all day; bells tolled; public buildings and private residences were draped, and flags were half-masted.

At Lexington, Va.

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 12.—Not since the burial of Gen. Robert E. Lee has this community been so deeply moved with sympathy for the death of any prominent man as was shown here yesterday for Jefferson Davis. At the hour of his funeral all business was suspended, flags half-masted, bells tolled a requiem while the entire populace gathered in joint worship to hear Hon. J. Randolph Tucker's review of Mr. Davis' life and character. It was a speech befitting a king. The eulogy was both historical and biographical, and concluded with a personal review, as the speaker personally knew the dead man. The speaker pronounced his love for Davis and his principles, but none the less loved the union. He was received with great approval. It was the most finished production of the Virginia statesman's life.

At Raleigh, N. C.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 12.—Very impressive memorial services in honor of Jefferson Davis were held here at noon, at many points in this state. Exercises in this city were attended by the state officers, justices of the supreme court, ex-Confederate veterans and military. All the military in the city participated and the city hall was elaborately draped in mourning. All public buildings were closed, flags were half-masted, bells tolled, schools closed and business to a large degree suspended. The memorial oration upon Mr. Davis was delivered by the Rev. Dr. John S. Watkins. The weather was perfect all over the state, and great interest was shown in the observances.

At Augusta, Georgia.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 12.—Business was suspended between 11 and 3 o'clock yesterday, the entire city joining in payment of tribute to the memory of Jefferson Davis. A military and civic procession passed through the streets, with furled flags, reversed arms and badges of mourning, while bells were tolled and cannon fired. On reaching the opera house public exercises were held. A funeral chant was sung by a chorus of sixty voices. Bishop, of Weed, of Florida, read the service, and Col. C. C. Jones, Jr., president of the Confederate survivors, was the orator.

At Lynchburg, Virginia.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Dec. 12.—Memorial services were held here last night at the opera house. An immense audience was present, and intense interest manifested in the exercises. Addresses were delivered by Rev. John E. Edwards, D. D., the oldest and most eloquent minister of the Methodist church in Virginia; Rev. Dr. Hall, of the Presbyterian church; Col. Lawrence S. Marrye, and W. W. Larkin, Esq., members of the Lynchburg bar. Business was suspended and bells were tolled during the hours appointed for Mr. Davis' funeral.

Legal Holiday in Savannah, Ga.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 12.—Memorial services were held in the leading churches yesterday, and afterward a public service was held at the Confederate monument in the park. Bells were tolled and salutes fired, and speeches were delivered by leading citizens. It was a legal holiday.

At Montgomery, Ala.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 12.—The city was full of emblems of mourning yesterday, and all business was suspended. Bells were tolled, minute guns fired and memorial services held. About 200 people from here attended the funeral at New Orleans.

At Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 12.—Business was generally suspended yesterday. A procession of veterans, militia, civic societies, school children, and about 3,000 citizens, marched to the capital, where memorial exercises were held.

Observing the Day in Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 12.—Memorial services in honor of Jefferson Davis were held in this city at midday.

Observed by Congress.

Centennial Exercises Held in the House.

WASHINGTON'S INAUGURATION.

The One Hundredth Anniversary of the Event Appropriately Celebrated by Both Branches of the National Legislature in Joint Session—Other Washington Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—In pursuance of a resolution adopted by congress in February last the two houses met in the hall of representatives yesterday to hold centennial exercises in commemoration of the inauguration of the first president. This was in the nature of a supplemental proceeding to the great centennial celebration held on the 30th of April in the city of New York, where President Washington first took the oath of his high office.

It was literally a gathering of nations. Through the foreign legations, resident in Washington, all were officially represented. Added to these were the delegates from the Central and South American republics, accredited to the Pan-American congress, now in session, and the members of the marine conference.

There were also present the governors of about twenty states, drawn hither for consultation in regard to memorializing congress for the erection of a centennial memorial building at Philadelphia, a matter that was first suggested at the meeting of the governors of the original thirteen states in 1880. The galleries were packed.

Shortly before 1 o'clock the house of representatives notified the senate that it was in session. In a few minutes the senate, followed by the president, and preceded by the vice president, the members of the diplomatic corps in their brilliant uniforms and the justices of the supreme court of the United States in their official robes, entered the hall of the house. They were escorted to the seats reserved for them in front of the speaker's desk. Vice President Morton took the speaker's chair, and at 10 o'clock called the house to order in joint session. The Marine band, which was stationed in the south corridor, rendered appropriate music. Rev. J. G. Butler, the senate chaplain, opened the services with prayer. Chief Justice Fuller, of the supreme court of the United States, then delivered his oration on the "Progress of America."

When the chief justice had concluded his address, which he took one hour and a quarter to deliver, he was greeted with applause from the floor, quickly taken up by the galleries. It was several minutes before these evidences of approbation ceased, and it broke forth again when the president, rising from his chair, grasped the hand of the chief justice as he descended from the platform and congratulated him on the address. Secretary Blaine also congratulated the chief justice.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. H. Auburn, the blind chaplain of the house. When he had concluded the vice president declared the joint assembly dissolved, and while the Marine band played Washington's Grand March, the assemblage dispersed in the order in which its various segments had come together. The last of the invited guests were just going out of the main door when the band finished the doxology, into which it had branched, and then Speaker Reed, again assuming his seat, called the house to order for the continuation of business.

Mr. Reed immediately moved to adjourn. The motion carried and the house adjourned.

But Little Work in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—After the transaction of routine business, the introduction of bills, etc., the senate at 12:52 proceeded to the house of representatives. On its return at 2:45, it adjourned.

Military Telegraph Operators.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Senator Morrill has introduced a bill to provide for the relief of military telegraph operators who served during the war. Although not performing strictly military duties, many of whom were injured or imprisoned, and who have received no recognition for their fidelity. The bill provides that the secretary of war, upon application of such surviving operators, shall issue a suitable certificate of honorable discharge, reciting the character of their services, and that they shall receive an allowance equal to or approximating the pay of one month at the time of discharge.

Butterworth and the Ballot-Box Forgery.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Representative Butterworth, of Ohio, will ask, in the house to-day, for a congressional investigation of the charges affecting his name and those of several other members of congress in connection with the Ohio ballot-box forgeries. It was charged by some newspapers that Mr. Butterworth, Senators Sherman, McPherson, Stockbridge and Representatives McKinley, Whiting and others, were connected with the ballot-box forgeries which Wood, of Cincinnati, is charged with having committed.

Petitions to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Vice President Morton has presented to the senate several petitions from the councils of trade and labor of different cities, praying for the amendment to the alien contract law, so as to secure its better enforcement.

He also presented the petition of the legislative assembly of Arizona, asking for an appropriation of $200,000 for the erection of a public building at Phoenix, Arizona.

Favorable Nominations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The senate committee on foreign relations, at its meeting yesterday, agreed to report favorable a number of nominations, including those of J. R. G. Pitkin, minister to the Argentine Republic; Thomas H. Anderson, minister to Bolivia; Fred. Douglas, minister to Haiti; A. L. Snowden, minister to Greece; Thomas H. Sherman, consul at Liverpool, and a number of consuls and consuls-general.

After the Island of Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Mr. Call introduced in the senate yesterday a bill authorizing the president to open negotiations with Spain for the acquisition of the island of Cuba. He presented with it the petition of natives of Cuba, now citizens of the United States, praying its passage.

THE CRONIN ARGUMENT

Attorney Forrest Finishes His Address and Court Takes a Recess.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Mr. Forrest resumed his address to the jury in the Cronin murder case yesterday morning by a discussion of the question: "Was the horse Dinan's horse?" Mrs. Dinan, Mr. Forrest said, described peculiarities about the horse which Mrs. Dinan had never seen. Mrs. Conklin described a peculiarity about the horse, the swinging of the front legs, that was a physical impossibility, and which she never thought of when talking to Capt. Schaak. She did not remember them even when she was describing the horse to Frank Scanlan, one of the associate counsel for the prosecution.

Mr. Forrest continued his argument against the probability of Mrs. Conklin's ability to identify any horse after only the brief inspection she had of it while looking out of the window.

The accusation of the state that Dan. Coughlin had a motive in killing the doctor was then considered. The testimony that Coughlin once said that unless a certain North Side Catholic kept his mouth shut, he would get done up, being discussed first. That the remark was true the speaker did not deny, but it simply had reference to a feature in the last municipal campaign, and that no weight should be attached to it, except to show how hard the state was straining to find a motive. As for the testimony that Coughlin endeavored to hire Sampson to do up Dr. Cronin, why that testimony was given by disreputable characters and that, too, was not worthy of consideration, except to show the state straining for a motive.

Here the hour for the noon recess called a halt and court adjourned.

At the afternoon session Mr. Forrest gave his attention to the cause of Martin Burke. There was nothing suspicious in Burke's movements subsequent to May 4. Not a word of evidence had been introduced at the trial to show that Burke was in the Carlson cottage on the night of May 4. The method of identification of Burke in Winnepeg, he said, was unfair, and showed that the state had no hopes of his really being the man that hired Martensen to haul the furniture, or even that it was Burke who rented the cottage.

O'Sullivan's reported declaration that Cronin was a British spy, and ought to be killed, might have been made, the attorney continued. What of it? Would not every true Irish patriot who believed a man to be a spy make such a remark? He might not commit murder, but he would very freely give utterance to such a declaration, and, therefore, there was nothing significant in the declaration if O'Sullivan made it.

Mr. Forrest closed his speech with an appeal to the jury to acquit his clients, because nothing had been proved against them beyond a reasonable doubt.

Judge McConnell said that a recess would be taken to Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Luther Laffin Mills will then begin.

STORM DAMAGE.

A Toronto Visits Jeannette, Pa., Demolishing Several Houses—Elsewhere.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 13.—The most destructive wind and rain storm that has ever visited the western portion of Westmoreland county passed over the new city of Jeannette about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Houses were blown down and unroofed, and trees torn up by the roots and carried a long distance.

Two large three-story frame buildings, owned by Messrs. Cort & Sullivan, on Clay avenue, were completely demolished, and a smaller building, owned by William Wilson, was blown down and reduced to splinters. A number of dwellings were moved from their foundations, and, in some instances, badly damaged. The loss will be at least $10,000. As far as reported no lives were lost.

Buildings Damaged in Indiana.

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind., Dec. 12.—About 7 o'clock Tuesday evening a tornado struck the little settlement called Strawn's, about five miles from here. The house and barn of Sam. Watson, a well-to-do farmer, were almost totally destroyed. Telegraph poles along the C. St. L. & P. railroad track were blown down for about a mile, doing considerable damage to the wires, and the house and barn of Cyrus Coffin, another prosperous farmer, were unroofed. This is a serious loss to Mr. Watson, as he has lately been to the expense of remodeling and newly furnishing his house.

Severe Storm in Wyandot County, Ohio.

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Dec. 12.—Quite a thunder and wind storm passed over this county Tuesday night. At Fowler City, seven miles south of here, the damage was severe. The Methodist Episcopal church was badly wrecked. The steeple was blown off, the roof crushed in and considerable other damage was done. A prayer meeting was being held in the church at the time, but fortunately no one was injured.

Destructive Cloud Burst.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Dec. 12.—A cloud burst over Perry's mill Tuesday night. Five houses were washed down stream. Joseph E. Easton was drowned. There were several narrow escapes.
